

4Rs

Relationships

At the core of ministry is friendships, accountability, and networking. Healthy relationships allow us to share best practices, encourage, and challenge each other. We can develop supportive and accountable relationships for the church on mission.

Reproduction

We are called to bear fruit that will last. This call is to reproduce across every level. We are called to reproduce Disciples, Leaders, Groups, Services, Churches, Networks and Movements. Healthy collaboration allows us to reproduce in a healthy way.

Principle 1: Reproducing is proactive, not reactive.

Principle 2: Reproducing is not about size, it's about leader readiness.

Principle 3: Reproducing isn't about our kingdom, it's about God's kingdom.

Resources

Healthy relationships lead to churches taking a “palms open” posture. Networks create a space for us to share our collective knowledge, experience, creativity, and resources with each other to achieve the Bigger Mission.

Raising Leaders

We are called to identify, raise, and equip leaders. A Network is a great platform to share this responsibility. A network provides diverse opportunities for growth for the upcoming leaders.
