

Welcome!

I'm passionate about the difference that Supervision makes in others ministries as they feel seen, heard and accompanied in their journey.

With over 20 years of experience in vocational ministry—both in Australia and internationally—I bring practical insight and experience to my Supervision practice. Since graduating from Sydney Missionary and Bible College in 2004, I've had the privilege of working across a variety of roles, including youth ministry, university student outreach, leadership development, and cross-cultural mission work as an associate with an international missions organisation.

I've also served as a Chaplain and Head of Department for Christian Studies at an Anglican girls' school in Sydney, as well as mentoring Bible college students preparing for vocational ministry. My diverse background spans pastoral care, preaching, evangelism, leadership training, and curriculum development. I have a particular interest in Bowen's Family Systems Theory, which offers valuable insights into how individuals and groups are shaped by the relational dynamics of their family of origin. This perspective enriches my approach to Supervision, helping clients better understand how their personal and professional lives intersect.

I am deeply passionate about the power of Supervision and the profound impact it can have on your ministry and the individuals you serve. With a background rooted in ministry and hands-on experience, my Supervision practice is specifically tailored to those working in ministry, education, and other faith-based environments—though I welcome individuals from all sectors. I offer sessions locally in Sydney (both in-person and online), as well as virtually across Australia and internationally. Let's explore how Supervision can support your growth and strengthen your work.

For more information and to book a no obligation introductory session please head to:

www.jodicrain.com.au